PROFILE

Teachers, authors and fitness instructors are plentiful. However, there aren't many family friendly, positive male role models occupying these roles. Not only does Kenji occupy this void, Kenji is a passionate and creative educator and coach with transformative powers.

He empowers people to enrich their lives through exercising their minds, bodies and they way they care for themselves and others. He believes in people... and it shows in the way that he challenges and encourages others to believe in themselves. This truly is a super power! Getting people to commit to improving themselves in challenging ways is not an easy feat, but it is a torch that Kenji proudly commits to in all of the work he has done in schools and throughout the community with his black fatherhood initiative.

Any participant that commits and accepts the challenge that any one of Kenji's programs and workshops provide, will surely come out on the other end transformed with a healthier outlook on life and thus better able to strive, accomplish and achieve more!

Kenji is a Father, Author, Certified Fitness Trainer and Fatherhood Ambassador, with a suite of children's books, expert features, and collaborations under his belt. With a few to include:

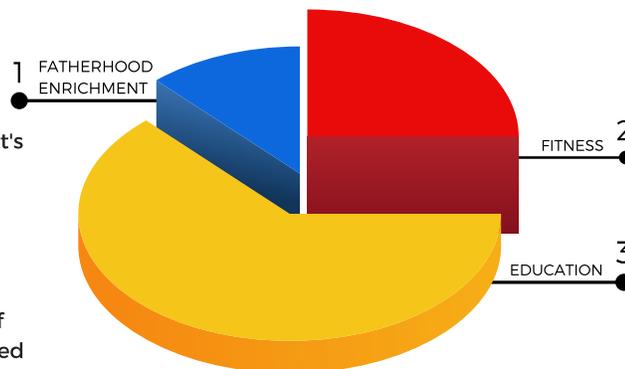

- The Reginald F. Lewis Annual African American Children's Book Fair
- J.U.G.S. Literary Cafe & The African American Author's & Empowerment Expo
- 2018 Indie Author Legacy Awards Finalist for children's book of the year

BKS WHOLENESS' MISSION

Success is a mindset that is easily achieved through consistent and healthy habits.

Kenji's mission to support disadvantaged youth, families and it's communities, is the driving force behind BKS Youth & Family Wholeness Services.

With wholeness as a concept, all services are geared to the growth of families and individuals via 3 targeted areas.
